

Lily

My boyfriend and I took a trip to San Antonio over summer and we decided to stop by the Humane Society since we both are true animal lovers. We never intended on actually adopting an animal there, we were simply just showing them some love and attention. Of course, I headed straight to the "puppy" room, and little did I know, one of those puppies was soon to be mine! Lily, formally known as "Dixie" was the only puppy in her litter that hadn't been adopted yet, so we got to play with her. I was immediately drawn to her specifically because of how cute and fluffy she was, and the look in her eyes just melted my heart. When we took her out to play, she was so excited and so loving. It was as if she knew we were the right family for her, and we felt the same. Even though we knew having a puppy would be a big responsibility, we knew Lily needed us. We got to take her to her new home, in Dallas.

At first she was very calm, but then she began to really warm up to us. She is a happy, healthy puppy! She gets so much attention and everyone absolutely adores her. We changed her name from "Dixie" to "Lily" because Lily just seemed more dainty, just like her. She loves to explore, take walks, and play fetch. She's just now learning how to sit and lay down.

When we got her she was just 6 pounds and now she is a healthy 12 pounds...we may spoil her just a little. She is very loved! We want to thank the Humane Society for helping all these animals, and choosing a good home for each of them. And thank you for allowing us to adopt our precious little angel!

Happy Parents,
