

Lokie

I was looking for a kitten to adopt for the first time. So my boyfriend and myself went to the Humane Society where my boyfriend adopted a dog there years before. As i was looking around the first kitten i saw was sleep but he was just so cute and little i knew i wanted him. I held him and immediately i knew he was the one so we adopted him, but we didn't change his name we kept it at Lokie. We took him home and for the first few nights he slept in the bed with us because he was a kitten and he was still trying to adapt to the new home. He was such a good kitten we started to teach him commands like lay down, get up, come here and no! He caught on so fast! So we bought a shirt for him and he loves it!! I have to try to sneak and take it off just to wash it because he always likes to wear it i guess because he sees us with a shirt and he wants one too haha i don't know. But since we don't have kids Lokie is like our baby he's so spoiled and now he learns that when its bed he has to sleep in his own bed and he's just as fine with that too! I'm so happy that we adopted him!
