

Scorch

Scorch the Cat has been with me about a month now. She's a lovely petite black cat. She is full of energy and has brought life to the household with her antics. She's adjusted well and has learned to tolerate the dog, and the dog in turn gets much entertainment watching her. Her favorite thing to do is to shoot an old hair scrunchy across the room and then chase it while making as much noise as possible galloping across the wood floors. She also carries the thing around like it is her baby and yowls at it. Scorch likes to help wake me up in the morning too.

I'm looking forward to many years with this vivacious little ladycat. Thanks for taking her in and watching out for her, Humane Society, until we could get together. A good match!

I've had trouble getting a still shot of Scorch as she's on the go so much. But this one with her tongue half stuck is only appropriate, as it makes me laugh, just as her antics always do.
