

Teddy

I've had Teddy now for just shy of 2 months and he is doing great. He learns commands so much better than his brother and is eager to give lots of love. The first photo was him crate training at 3 months and the rest are him with his brother today at the park.

And I did a doggie DNA test with him because everyone thought he was a different breed and I was curious. He is 25% chow, 25% mixed unknown hound, 25% blue heeler, and 25% American Staffordshire Terrier (pit bull).

Thanks for helping us complete our home with Teddy.
