

Sasha

My husband and I adopted Sasha, nee Ellen (seriously guys... Ellen!?), in the fall of 2013. She appears to be mostly Border Collie, but I suspect she may be mixed with land shark based on the amount of inanimate objects she ate in her youth.

She is the kindest, smartest, most patient and loving dog. Literally the best $100 I've ever spent. She has raised and mothered countless puppies, several rabbits and one very ungrateful cat. She is easily the most responsible member of our household and that is including my husband and I.

Sasha wears many hats at our house and serves as security officer, nanny, therapist and personal trainer among other things. She is always there to tell on her siblings when they are up to no good and call me on my BS with her judgmental face. She is my right hand girl and my best bud. I literally cannot imagine life without her. Thank you SAHS for bringing her into my life!
