

Kiwi – Update

Kiwi wants to wish all her friends at the shelter a Happy Memorial Day weekend, and to let you all know she is doing very well. She loves the sunlight, and she loves to eat. And the part we like, she loves to spend time with us – on the sofa when we watch TV or on the desk when we use the computer. She can be pretty vocal at times, but she is really a lovable little girl. She only weights 5.5 pounds and we kiddingly refer to her as our miniature cat, but she has held steady at that weight for a long time and looks great! She's a master at finding the sunny spot as can be seen on the attached photo. And she is a beggar beyond compare. She must have been really spoiled before she joined us, and she hasn't lost any of her knacks for getting fed from the table. The big green eyes and little paw tapping your leg are all it takes. She's sure wormed her way into our hearts.

Kiwi and our other cat Cisco have never become close nor do things together. They will walk right up to each other, but never show any inclination to be friends. But they aren't enemies either – they have never fought. We would have liked to see them be buds, and maybe someday they will, but at least they coexist well together in the same house. The attached photo is as close as they've gotten when I had the camera.

We hope you all have a great holiday weekend. Kiwi appreciates all you did for her, and we wish you well as you continue your work for others.
