Vaccine Reactions

Every vaccine stimulates the immune system-that is the way vaccines are designed, and why they are effective. Sometimes, vaccines “over stimulate” the immune system, or the body overreacts to the vaccine or components in the vaccine. This overstimulation can cause a vaccine reaction. The veterinarians at SAHS would like you to know what to expect after your pet gets a vaccine.

Common-Normal response to vaccines (symptoms should only last 24-48 hours):

- ⇒ Low-grade fever less than 104
- ⇒ Mild lethargy/sleepiness
- ⇒ Mild soreness at the site where vaccine was administered, or general soreness
- ⇒ If any of these symptoms occur more than 48 hours, please see your primary care veterinarian.

Occasional-Mild to moderate vaccine reaction symptoms (happen in the first 24 hours after a vaccine):

- ⇒ Facial swelling or hives on the body
- ⇒ Vomiting or diarrhea (may occur at the same time)
- ⇒ Severe Lethargy, abnormal behavior

Uncommon to Rare-Severe vaccine reaction symptoms (happen immediately after vaccine):

- ⇒ Collapse, shock
- ⇒ Difficulty breathing

If your pet has previously had a severe reaction to a vaccine, YOU MUST HAVE YOUR PET VACCINATED AT A FULL SERVICE CLINIC. WE ARE NOT EQUIPPED TO DEAL WITH SEVERE VACCINE REACTIONS.

Our wellness clinics are designed to provide streamlined service for healthy pets in need of their regular immunizations. A pet with a history of reacting to vaccines needs special attention in the form of observation in the hospital and pre-treatment with medications prior to vaccination. If your pet has a severe reaction, our veterinarians are legally authorized to provide BASIC LIFE SUPPORT TREATMENT ONLY. Your primary care veterinarian must administer any additional care at a full service veterinary clinic.
